New Developments in Intelligent Buildings International

Editor: Derek Clements-Croome, University of Reading

Intelligent Buildings International, edited by Professor Derek Clements-Croome (W098), goes beyond traditional engineering and architecture solutions and examines new methodologies and tools for intelligent buildings, smart materials and systems, exploring the wider context beyond theoretical foundations, and linking practical solutions with philosophical or sociological considerations.

The journal has an inter-disciplinary approach and welcomes contributions from both practitioners and academics. The principal areas covered by the journal include:

- understanding how the built environment affects people's well-being
- sustainable design and management
- automation and innovative systems
- approaches to design

Earthscan is excited to announce that the journal is now using ScholarOne Manuscripts as its online submission and peer-review system. The system will enable easier submission of articles to the journal as well as allowing authors to track their papers through every stage of the peer review process.

Submission types include review articles, research articles, case study articles, visionary perspectives and commentaries, technical notes and book reviews. To submit a paper, please visit:

We are also proud to announce that the journal has appointed a team of regional editors, from practice and academia, to widen the geographical scope of the journal and support the editor-in-chief by providing expert advice on papers from their respective regions. The regional editorial board is made up of the following:

- North America: Jim Sinopoli, Smart Buildings, USA
- Middle East: Dr Husam Al Waer, University of Dundee, UK
- Far East: Professor Baizhan Li, Chongqing University, China
- South America: Mrs Ivette Arroyo, Universidad Católica de Santiago de Guayaquil, Ecuador
- Africa: Dr Tallal Abdalbasit Saeed, University of Khartoum, Sudan

- Eastern Europe: Dr Ferenc Kalmár, University of Debrecen, Hungary
- Oceania: Dr Johnny Wang, Queensland University of Technology, Australia
