Introduction

The CIB Facilities Management conference is arranged biannually by CIB Working Commission W070. The conference in 2014 is organised in collaboration with W111 Usability and W118 Clients and Users and the local host Centre for Facilities Management at the Technical University of Denmark.

This joint conference amongst working commissions focus on stakeholders in the built environment, the importance of increased openness, and how FM can create value for all stakeholders. Abstracts and papers have been received and reviewed covering a range of themes including:

- Challenges in using facilities in an open world
- The value of FM for organisations, communities and society
- Facilities Management as a profession and a discipline
- Involving users in FM and facilities/building projects
- The role of clients in the development of the built environment
- Sustainability of FM and the built environment

A committee under the chairmanship of the local host, professor Per Anker Jensen, together with the coordinators of CIB W070, W111 and W118, is planning and organising the conference. The scientific committee consists of well qualified senior researchers from around the world.
