Proceedings of the W107 Conference: Construction in Developing Countries and its Contribution to Sustainable Development

Editors: Stephen Ogulana, Godwin Idoro, Martin Dada, University of Lagos, Nigeria
Anthony Iweka, Victor Ilechukwu, Wale Alade, Heriot-Watt University, UK

The conference attracted paper submission from across the globe in particular UK, USA, Australia, Singapore, South Africa, Kenya, Ghana and the host country Nigeria. This reflected the global nature of the conference. All 7 keynote papers and 78 research papers were presented in the conference.

The research papers consisted of 46 papers on Management, 8 papers on Technology, 6 papers on Design, 4 papers on Education and Training and 14 papers on Environmental Planning. The research papers underwent a two-stage paper review process. The first stage involved the review of each abstract by members of the Conference International Scientific Committee. The second stage involved the review of the full paper of each accepted abstract by at least two members of the Conference International Review and Scientific Committees. The two-stage review process helped to improve the quality and standard of the papers accepted for the conference.
